

Fossil fuels store energy as chemical form while in case of electrochemical energy storage, the electrical and chemical energies are interconvertible within a fraction of time [2]. ...

