

Portable radios are individual units carried by personnel, a base station is a fixed central point of communication in a system, and a cell phone is a personal communication device that ...

