

The new concepts assume an efficient transfer of the solar energy or the other type of energy with changing availability to a heat transfer medium. The thermal energy is then transported into ...

