

Despite the potential for solar energy, Africa faces significant challenges in achieving widespread electrification. The economic constraints are also substantial; high initial investment costs for ...

